

1. slapp
2. Adam Nelson, Matt Bussing, Savannah Paul
3. Savannah
4. OddJobs
5. The app will be a platform where people can upload jobs of varying type and complexities with a description, estimated time and price. From there, users looking to make quick money can request to do a job and if the poster accepts the request they will be put into contact. After the job is completed the uploader will verify its completion and money will be transferred from one account to the other. The uploader will then have a chance to leave a review on the worker that will be factored into a star rating and displayed on their profile. Subsequently making bad workers seem less appealing to the users when selecting a worker.